

What is Coordinated Entry?

The River Valleys Coordinated Entry System makes sure that all people having a housing crisis have fair and equal access to housing. People will be identified, assessed for, referred, and linked to housing and services based on their individual needs. We use a uniform assessment that matches the right level of services and housing resources to people that are homeless.

How do I access Coordinated Entry?

You can get connected to coordinated entry through any access site, either in person or on the phone.

How do I get placed on the Coordinated Entry List?

We have a housing assessment we do to help determine possible housing programs that might be a good fit for you. After the assessment you will then be placed onto the coordinated entry list that housing providers get names from when an opening becomes available. You do not need to contact each housing agency separately once you have been placed onto the coordinated entry list, but should still seek other housing.

I have been placed on the list, am I promised housing?

No. Unfortunately, there is not enough permanent housing for all applicants that will seek assistance. Once you have been assessed and placed on the list, you are strongly encouraged to continue to seek other housing options.

Where am I on the Coordinated Entry List?

Coordinated entry is not a waitlist for housing. We don't know how long it will take to match you with the right housing program. Housing referrals are made based on availability and individual needs.

Who do I contact if my information has changed?

You should contact the agency that assessed you to update any information that has changed. If you do not remember where you were assessed then call or visit any access site located in our 20 county southeast region to update your information.

Will my information be kept private?

Yes. Personal information about people who are assessed and referred will not be shared with the public.
